G'wood to vote Saturday on dam

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Two centuries ago, the land that is now covered by North, South and Round ponds was a patchwork of much smaller ponds, streams and swamps, according to Blaine Mills, president of the Greenwood Historical Society.

And current town officials worry that the land — more than 700 acres of it — will revert to this pristine state if voters at a special Town Meeting Saturday refuse to take over ownership of the dam that holds back the waters of the modern lakes.

If that were to happen, they note, hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of shoreland property would suddenly become landlocked — and presumably worth far less on the town tax rolls.

The dam, on the Alder River, and its condition have long been a matter of concern. That concern was heightened in 1998, when the owner of the dam, Gilbert Manufacturing, declared bankruptcy.

The Gilbert Manufacturing mill was eventually sold to a new owner, Saunders Bros., but the new company did not purchase the dam, which after some legal procedures reverted back to Duane Gilbert.

Gilbert, however, had long said he did not wish to own the dam — and assume the responsibilities that come with that ownership. At one point prior to his company's bankruptcy he had even offered to sell the dam to the town for one dollar.

Town selectmen declined the offer. Marie Bartlett, now vice president of the Community Lakes Association of Greenwood and Woodstock, was on the Board of Selectmen at the time.

"We thought nothing was going to change. As long as Duane owned it everything would go on as before," she said. "If he was taking care of it why should the town take it over?"

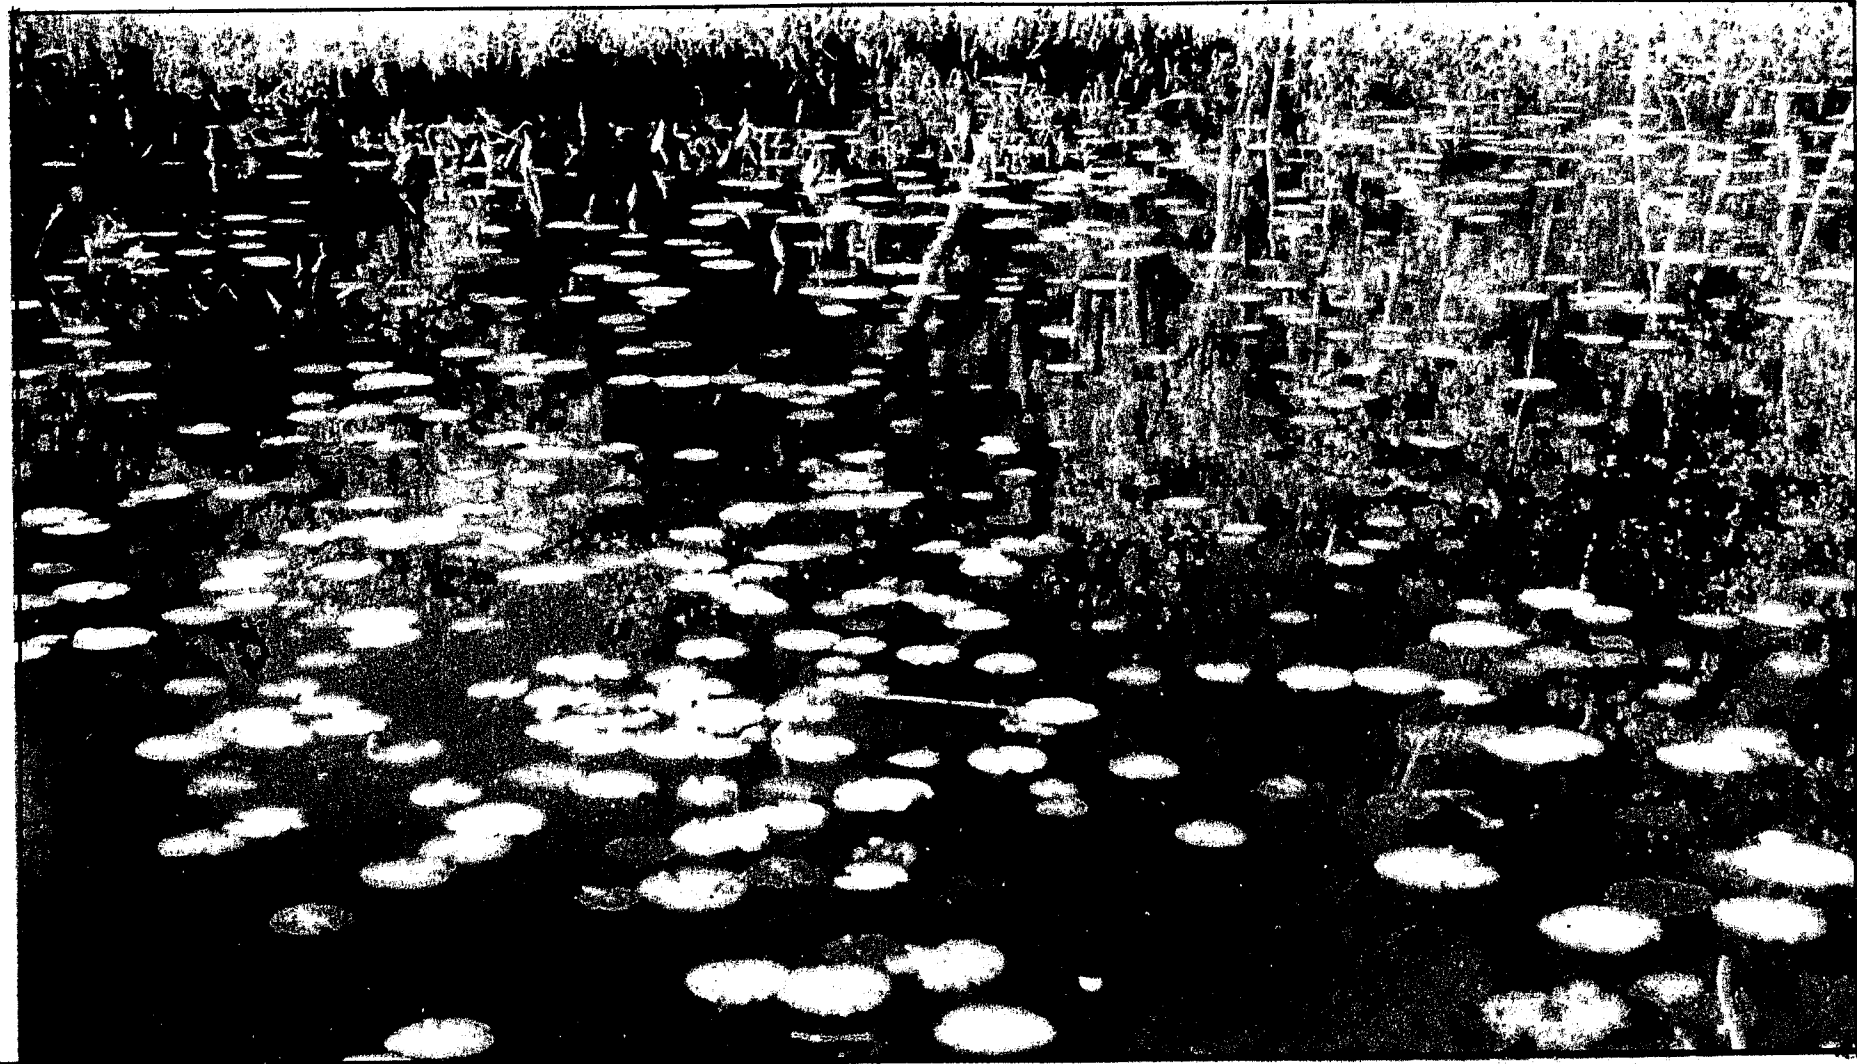

But Gilbert is no longer taking care of the dam (an employee of Saunders Bros. currently maintains it), and Bartlett is now a strong advocate of the town's taking over ownership.

Current selectmen agree. While the board has not taken a formal vote on the matter, the consensus has been that the cost of taking over the dam would be small change compared to the potential loss of tax revenue if the dam were to be breached.

Exactly what the cost of taking over the dam would be is uncertain, but Town Manager Carol Whitman said it would probably be limited to initial repairs, then the cost of annual inspection and maintenance.

Fall reflections

The foliage season of 2001 started a tad drab, but the colors have burst to life during the past week. Here, the turning foliage is reflected in a small Locke Mills pond. The national mood also apparently brightened enough to bring leaf peepers to the area over the weekend. (Photo by Daniels)

'Simplify, simplify, simplify?' — not this food tax

By ALISON ALOISIO

Local reaction to the new 7 percent tax on prepared foods is ranging from grumbling to no reaction at all.

"A few people commented, 'Your price went up again,'" said Rick Breau of Breau's restaurant in Bethel.

"My price hasn't gone up," he said. "You have to pay more tax. We have to take the grief from the customers."

The tax went into effect Oct. 1, and covers food prepared by a retailer. The previous tax was 5 percent.

The new law can be confusing. It puts some retailers in the position of collecting 7 percent on some items and 5 percent on others. Breau said that at his brother's restaurant/store in Bryant Pond, Breau's II, the tax on the convenience store items remain at 5 percent, while the prepared food is 7. At the Bethel restaurant, the few convenience-store-type items Rick sells are taxed at 7 percent.

That's because the law states if a business' sales are more than 75 percent prepared food, all items sold are taxed at 7 percent. That is the case in Bethel.

But in Bryant Pond, the prepared food is not 75 percent of total sales, so the law applies differently. Only the prepared food is at 7 percent, while the other items are still at 5.

That situation, said Breau, creates an uneven playing field. He must tax soda at 7 percent, for example, while a convenience store taxes the same item at 5.

Leaf season turns registers green

From New Yorkers looking to get out of the city, to Europeans sticking with their planned travel schedule, tourists came in force to the Bethel area last weekend.

Although the events of Sept. 11 stemmed the flow of people and phone calls to the area for a brief time, business and reservations appear to be making a comeback.

Faith Buell of the Black Bear Bed & Breakfast in Newry said she had a few cancellations right after Sept. 11. But then, she said, "It picked up. A lot of people said, 'Damn it, we're going to do it anyway,'" she said. Buell has had a number of guests from the South, as well as some from England.

This weekend her six rooms were full both Friday and Saturday nights. It's an increase over last year, she said.

It was a similar story at the Ro-

Americans and some Europeans are still willing to travel to see fall's show stay and Norseman inns in Bethel. "We had a lot of cancellations (after Sept. 11) for the end of September," said Dale Cheney of the Norseman. But the openings then filled in with people who made a late decision to drive to the area. At the Rostay, "This weekend was fabulous," said Kathy Thrall. She said she has few international guests, which is abnormal for this time of year.

But they have been replaced by people from all over the U.S., including the West Coast. "And it sounds like people are flying," she said. Her 18 rooms were full over the weekend. "On Saturday night at 10:30 people were still looking for rooms, and couldn't find anything," she said.

Both Cheney and Thrall said the many activities in the area, including the festival at Sunday River, an antique show and a jeep jamboree drew many people.

And they came to eat as well. At the Sudbury Inn, Bill White said more dinners than last year were served during the weekend evenings. A number of diners were people from New York who wanted to get away from the scene of the terrorist attacks. And, he said, "There were a lot of British folks."

Expert: Logging responsible for erosion problems in Sunday River

Associated Press

Logging is to blame for the destabilization of the lower Sunday River, according to a Canadian river specialist.

Over the years, transporting logs down river caused damage because it required building small dams to maintain a minimum depth, John D. Parish wrote in a draft report on the river's problems. Timber harvesting in the past 15 years above the Owungia Camp in Riley Township may have accelerated the problems.

"It is readily apparent that the Sunday River, from the Androscoggin River to upstream of the Owungia Camp, is experiencing some dramatic adjustments," Parish said.

The river's deep fishing pools have disappeared and the river is wider than it was in the early 1980s. The changes have become more dramatic in recent years and have started to affect land along the river's shores and the fish habitat.

Aerial photos from 1943 and 1999 show the river has changed its course. Those changes have eroded and transported substantial quantities of glacial soils and cobbles downstream, Parish said.

Within a span of three years, the river carved a 1,400-foot channel through farmable land owned by Randy Harrington. "I'd never seen a river change direction like that," said district conservationist Peter Marcinuk of the Natural Resources Conservation Service, who visited the river last month.

Parish was brought in to look at the water's movement and the supply and movement of sediment. He is working with Jock Conyngnam, the director of watershed assessment and geomorphic restoration at Trout Unlimited in Bangor.

Community Concepts' plan for Bethel began in Fryeburg

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

However much the current plans for affordable housing in Bethel Station may or may not meet the needs of the town of Bethel, the project did not originate here.

The town of Fryeburg previously rejected the project. That rejection was subsequently upheld in court.

Two weeks ago, the Bethel Planning Board approved an application from Community Concepts to build 12 units of low- to middle-income housing in Bethel Station. On Monday night, the Board of Selectmen will again consider Town Manager Scott Cole's request to appeal that approval.

At issue is the unbuilt portion of Mechanic Street. The town owns the right of way, and there are waterlines already in the street. Cole said the Planning Board's decision was improper planning that went against the procedures and plans for Bethel Station the board had previously adopted.

The Fryeburg Connection

In 1999, Fryeburg Housing Associates Limited Partnership purchased a house containing four apartments on 9.4 acres of land located at 74 Main Street in Fryeburg.

Fryeburg Housing Associates is a partnership formed by Community Concepts. Community Concepts is the general partner, and would act as the developer for the land and house.

Community Concepts filed an application with the Maine State Housing Authority for tax credits to rehabilitate the house and to build two apartment buildings of eight units each on the site. After that, the organization filed a Site Plan Review application with the Fryeburg Planning Board.

According to June Irvine, administrative assistant to the Fryeburg selectmen, the Planning Board turned down the application, citing safety concerns for pedestrians and automobile traffic.

WE'RE NOT COWERING IN A CAVE

To the Editor:

I think that there is one thing that should be noted about Osama bin Laden's televised presentation in response to the Allied action taken against the Taliban factions in Afghanistan. His claim that Americans are living in fear, North to South, and East to West, was the most impugned and pathetic attempt at bravado that I have ever had the displeasure of witnessing.

While most Americans have picked themselves up, dusted themselves off and gone about their business, this (man), and I realize that when I say (man) I am taking considerable liberties with the terminology, is making this supposed revelation while he himself is cowering in a cave somewhere in the wilds of Afghanistan.

BLOOD DRIVE THANKS

To the Editor:

The Bethel Area Blood Drive held on Oct. 6 at Crescent School was organized in response to the Sept. 11 attack. It was conceived as a means by which our citizens could respond in a very personal, timely way even though quite removed from that tragic circumstance. It was organized in such a way as to maximize our contribution while minimizing impact on a heavily stressed and distant Red Cross organization.

We are absolutely delighted to report that our community met and exceeded all expectations. The total number of sign-ups exceeded 230 — an impressive number from a relatively small community.

Local establishments generously supported the effort by donating snacks, sandwiches and drinks that greatly exceeded the "usual fare" provided for these occasions. Crescent Park School devoted great effort to provide a comfortable, well-organized facility. Volunteers of all ages contributed their time and creativity to ensure that the process flowed smoothly and donors felt welcome and comfortable.

All that effort and organization came together marvelously on Oct. 6. 170 people signed in, and of those, 135 were able to donate. (The loss was due to recent colds or flu, last donation too recent, and low iron levels.) Twenty-seven were deferred to another date.

The Red Cross staff was truly impressed with our Bethel area presentation. The donors were, too, who after giving, gathered around the refreshment counter to munch, sip and socialize during and even long after the usual rest period.

Tom Miller (Portland Red Cross) commented that the Bethel turnout far exceeded what could have been expected from three originally planned locations.

We sincerely thank you all for your generosity, kindness, and the spirit that made this whole thing work so well. It was rewarding in its own right, but also in the sense that if ever required again, we are confident that we can meet a challenge both as individuals and as a community. We have just cause for pride in a job well done.

In our backyard

Urban raindrops

Ever wonder what it would be like to be a raindrop that falls in a city or town? When rain falls on streets, sidewalks, parking lots, roofs and driveways, there are few opportunities to soak into the ground. A surface that doesn't allow water to soak in is called impervious. Throughout our urban areas, rain finds many impervious surfaces.

So if a raindrop doesn't soak into the ground, where does it go? It has to go somewhere, or cities and towns would flood during rainstorms. This is where storm drains come in handy. Storm drains are located everywhere there are curbs instead of ditches. These drains carry away all the raindrops that fall in urban areas and take them "away."

The problem is that they don't really go away. Storm drains hook up to underground pipes and tunnels that empty in the stream, river, lake or coastal water just down the street. Unlike the wastewater from our homes and at work, this water goes untreated into our local waters.

A raindrop picks up hitchhiking pollutants as it moves toward a storm drain. Eroded soil particles, spilled gasoline, motor oil, fertilizers, pesticides, pet waste, dust and soaps can all attach themselves to a raindrop and take a free ride to nearest water. Whatever we use on our property and all that falls from our cars and trucks onto the streets, parking lots or driveways is washed "away" in the next rainfall and swept down a storm drain.

A study of 27 small streams found that streams where impervious surfaces covered 10 percent or more of the watershed had dramatically poorer water quality than those located in watersheds with less than 3 percent coverage. This is why you may see messages next to storm drains like, "Don't Dump! Protect Your Water," or "Drains to River, Dump No Waste!" These are "signs" that volunteers in the area are working to raise awareness about the direct route storm drains take to our waters.

You can help, too. To decrease the load of pollutants washing off local properties, residents and business owners should: prevent soil erosion; recycle used motor oil; dispose of antifreeze and other toxic chemicals properly; keep vehicles properly maintained; do a soil test and then use only what your lawn or garden requires; clean up pet waste; wash vehicles at a car wash where the wastewater goes through treatment; and, of course, never dump anything down a storm drain.

Help keep raindrops from picking up polluting hitchhikers. The health of our waters depends on you. For more information on watershed protection organizations near you, please contact the DEP's Division of Watershed Management at (207) 287-2111.

CROSSING CHANGES—Flashing signals will be installed at two railroad crossings in Woodstock in 2003, according to the Maine Department of Transportation. The Railroad Street (also known as Birch Street) and Pine Point crossings will have warning devices. "Surface rehabilitation" of the roads at the crossings is also planned, as part of the 2002-2003 Biennial Transportation Improvement Program. The work is expected to begin in May of 2003. The plans also call for the closing of the Grove Street Crossing (above), which is located at the top of a sharp rise just off Railroad Street. The street leads to the Unitarian Universalist Church and the Lakeside Cemetery. Woodstock selectmen learned of the plans last week in a letter from the Department of Transportation. MDOT provided the information in response to a letter from resident Vicky Myers. Myers, a Birch Street resident, had expressed concern regarding the safety of the crossing on that street. Bruce Jameson, Multimodal Program manager for MDOT, said Wednesday there are also plans to put flashing signals at the crossing on Lakeside Drive. In addition, he said, MDOT will make tentative plans for gates at the crossings slated for improvements, in the event passenger rail service returns.

Housing

Community Concepts appealed the decision. The Fryeburg Appeals Board upheld the Planning Board, Irvine said.

Last year, Community Concepts took the matter a step further, filing a lawsuit with Superior Court against the Town of Fryeburg, alleging improper procedure in the decisions made by the Planning Board and Appeals Board.

Irvine said that the court found no improper procedure, and upheld the town decisions.

The invitation to Bethel

Last December, Bethel's 2003 Committee invited Dennis LaJoise of Community Concepts to come and discuss how Bethel could meet the goals for affordable housing in its comprehensive plan. According to Al Cressy, the committee's intent was to form a working relationship with Community Concepts to address those needs.

Cressy said that they asked LaJoise for a needs assessment for the Bethel area. The minutes from the meeting indicate that LaJoise agreed to provide such an assessment.

At the committee's next meeting, Cressy expected a needs assessment. Instead, he said, LaJoise came with a plan to build in Bethel Station.

Since that time, a number of requests have been made for a needs assessment by the Bethel Community, including the Bethel Planning Board. LaJoise has denied those requests, saying the information is proprietary.

But the needs assessment is part of the tax-credit application, and is part of public record. The Citizen obtained the application from the Housing Authority after filing a Freedom of Information request.

The assessment is a market analysis, primarily based on 1990 census data. It indicates the apartments would be rented if built. While it identifies the need for affordable housing in Oxford County and the Rumford area, there is little information specific to the needs of the Bethel area.

A new tax-credit application
Last March, Community Concepts filed a new application for tax credits to build housing. This application was for rehabilitating the four apartments in Fryeburg and constructing 12 new apartments in Bethel.

The cover letter to the application indicated the history of problems that occurred in Fryeburg.

The cover letter also refers to the meeting with the 2003 Committee. "We have received strong support for the project from local officials in Bethel, in particular Committee 2003 that was formed to develop local planning for increasing the supply of affordable housing and other development."

Bethel's participation in the Bethel Station development is also referred to in the cover letter. "The town became a 'quasi' partner in the development of Bethel Station and invested more than $500,000 of public funds in infrastructure improvements to the neighborhood, including a major upgrade to the sewer treatment facility. Our project is clearly part of this larger 'neighborhood revitalization' plan which was established to increase commercial and residential development."

The final point of the cover letter appears to conflict with public statements made by LaJoise on numerous occasions. He has said that the housing would be for low- to middle-income families, rather than subsidized housing. But the cover letter said, "The Partnership will give preferential treatment for low-income families who are on a public housing or Section 8 waiting list." This commitment is repeated throughout the application.

In April, the Maine State Housing Authority (MSHA) reviewed the application and reserved the tax credits for the project. Their letter to LaJoise said, "This is a notice to proceed, not a commitment of financing."

Community Concepts view

According to Mathew Smith, executive administrator of Community Concepts, the organization has attempted to work with the community to make this development happen.

"We've talked with the town manager in March, we've worked closely with the CEO, and made presentations to the 2003 Committee, local senior citizens, and the Chamber of Commerce. Our first presentation on this project was made to the Planning Board in late March."

"We are surprised at this late date that the issue of the road would come up from the town manager. We had not heard of any of that at the preliminary meetings."

Cole strongly denies this. "Per my instructions last spring, the town planner repeatedly communicated to the applicant that street construction would be requested during the Planning Board's review. I stated my position on street construction at the Planning Board's Aug. 1 hearing, which was attended by representatives of Community Concepts. I also stated that my comments would be reiterated in a letter to the Planning Board. This letter was issued on Sept. 5."

Smith said that he believes Community Concepts has diligently attempted to communicate with the town about the project.

"Our intention all along was to keep the community informed and to build affordable housing in the Village area," he said. "We believe that the project is viable, is good for Bethel, and apparently the Planning Board agrees that we've met all the requirements."

Smith also stressed that Community Concepts has had great successes across Oxford County, with both home ownership and rental housing.

Smith said that they would wait and see what actions of the Selectmen are before proceeding. "Should the selectmen decide to go ahead with an appeal, we'll honor that process."

Basis for appeal

Cole still hopes, he said, that the board will decide to appeal the Planning Board's decision.

"There are a number of procedural flaws that occurred in the review of this application," he said. "Normally, these types of flaws are inconsequential, and thus overlooked."

"However, in this case the potential repercussions for the town are so significant that a town-sponsored appeal is worthy of consideration."

Cole said the precedent currently set might lead to future developers on abutting parcels not being required to contribute to the cost of building the unfinished portion of Mechanic Street. He fears that cost would eventually fall on the taxpayers.

Cole said his concerns also include impaired traffic flow and emergency response capabilities.

"All these things were considered originally in the mid-'90s. This is why there was originally a right of way approved and recorded."

"The net result," Cole said, "is a 60-foot wide, 550-foot long impassable no-man's land that is not functional or aesthetic."

Briefly

Board approves sixth-grade plan

BETHEL—The SAD44 Board of Directors approved a first reading of a policy that will bring all Andover sixth-graders to Telstar Middle School. Parents have had a choice until now whether to keep their children at the Andover Elementary School for the grade or send them to TMS. Supt. Kent Rosberg said keeping some students at AES creates instructional difficulties because they must be in a class with fifth-graders. He also said the students miss out on curriculum and a transitional program to middle school offered at TMS. And, he said, for students coming to TMS in seventh grade, the adjustment is similar to moving to a new school district. All sixth-graders from Andover are at the middle school for this school year. The board will have its final vote on the issue Oct. 22.

Follow the rules on demolition

NEWRY—Selectmen are putting the word out to property owners that they must follow state and federal regulations regarding asbestos materials if they plan a building demolition. The rules require that buildings be inspected for asbestos products (such as shingles, tiles or insulation) and have them removed prior to demolition. The inspection and removal operations must be performed by DEP-licensed companies under regulated and controlled conditions. For more information, contact the Town Office.

Horse show benefits victims

ANDOVER—Ellis River Riders will host a benefit Gymkhana Fun Day Horse Show on Oct. 13, beginning at 9 a.m. All proceeds from the horse show will be donated to the Uniformed Fireman's Association Widows' and Children's Fund to aid families of the victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. Spectators are welcome and admission, parking and seating are all free. Home-cooked food and beverages are available for purchase. The day will start with a patriotic parade, followed by the Gymkhana Fun Day Show, which features 35 classes in two divisions in two disciplines. Participants are asked to dress in red, white and blue. For more information, visit www.ellisriverriders.com.

Pooh Corner to be recognized

BETHEL—Pooh Corner Farm Greenhouses & Florists has been selected as the recipient of the 2001 Maine School Board Association Business Friend of Education Award. The award will be presented Oct. 26 at the Maine School Management Association annual fall conference at the Augusta Civic Center. Supt. Kent Rosberg said over the years Pooh Corner and its staff has hosted field trips, provided flowers for schools, donated materials for science projects, and participated in an after-school go-kart program which, he said, has helped keep several students from dropping out of school.

SAD44 concert planned

BETHEL—An All Choral Concert by SAD44 choral ensembles will take place Oct. 24 at Telstar's Helen Berry Auditorium at 7 p.m. Elementary, Middle and high school singers will perform. The public is invited to attend.

Bridge work in Greenwood

GREENWOOD—Motorists using the Norway-Greenwood Road in Greenwood are asked to slow down and be prepared to stop as they approach the Hicks Pond Outlet Bridge, just west of Route 219. The Maine Department of Transportation is replacing the deck of the bridge. The project is expected to last four to six weeks. Alternating one-way traffic across the bridge will be maintained by signs directing motorists to yield to oncoming traffic.

Lawyer to investigate elevator death

PORTLAND—A Maryland couple whose 8-year-old son was killed in an elevator accident has hired a Portland lawyer to represent them. Terrence Garmey confirmed Thursday that Jeffrey and Mary Smith of Bel Air, Md., hired him to investigate the death of their son. Garmey said he does not know whether the parents will file a suit. Joseph Tucker Smith was killed at the Bethel Inn Aug. 23. He became wedged in the space between the elevator's outer door and inner gate, and was killed when the elevator was called to another floor. Garmey suggested that if a lawsuit is filed, it is unlikely to name the state as a defendant. The 7-inch space between the elevator's door and gate was in violation of state regulations. But the state-license inspector who checked the elevator in June failed to note in his report that the space was too wide. State regulations allow a gap of no more than 4 inches, but the standard was 5 inches until March of this year. The state licenses elevators, but most inspections are performed by private inspectors hired by elevator owners. The state's inspectors concentrate on new elevators that have not yet been put in service and on double-checking the work of private inspectors.

Union vote at Bretton Woods delayed

BRETTON WOODS, N.H.—The National Labor Relations Board ordered postponement of a union election this Friday at the Mt. Washington Hotel and Resort after the union filed unfair labor charges against the hotel. An NLRB spokesman said the election would likely be rescheduled after the allegations are investigated. About 350 employees had been expected to vote on whether to have the United Food and Commercial Workers Union, Local 1445, represent them. The union claims employees have been intimidated, restrained and hindered; that there have been threats of retaliation, and improper surveillance of union activities, among other claims. Mark Peabody, an organizer from Milan who has been promoting the union for the past 18 months, said there had been an erosion of support for the union in recent weeks. Hotel officials said the filing of charges by the union was a delay tactic. Jere Eames, resort general partner, said the organizers were insensitive to the mood of employees and guests following terrorist attacks on the U.S. Sept. 11. Eames said the organizers stood in front of the hotel with signs on the national day of mourning that week. He said employees were so disgusted with organizer tactics that a petition was circulated at the hotel asking the union discontinue activities there. More than 200 had signed, he said. Peabody said his group campaigned that day because the governor of New Hampshire was attending a meeting at the hotel.

King: eliminate checkpoints

CARIBOU—Gov. Angus King is calling for the elimination of border crossing checkpoints between Canada and the U.S. King said the two nations should coordinate a "continental" border policy to determine who is allowed into the countries in the first place. If that happened, said King, the Canada-U.S. checkpoints could be eliminated so people could travel freely back and forth. Such a proposal is gaining support among other government officials in the two countries, and would provide an economic stimulus for border towns in northern Maine, King said.

Udder relief

ORONO—The University of Maine Cooperative Extension will offer training Oct. 25 in Orono to individuals who want to give a helping hand to Maine's dairy farmers by becoming part of the Relief Milker System. A relief milker steps in to milk a dairy herd to give farmers a break from chores. The class features activities and hands-on experience, and concludes with the evening milking at the university dairy farm. So far, about 50 people have attended the day-long training sessions. Classes cost $15. To register call (800) 287-7170.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Offenders pick up after themselves

At 11:45 p.m. on Oct. 4 two subjects were stopped at the intersection of Route 2 and Railroad Street, after they threw stolen items over the overpass onto Railroad Street. The officer had them clean up the items. The subjects, both juveniles, were given summonses for theft and placing debris in roadways.

Saturday, Oct. 6

At 1:05 a.m. police were advised by the Sheriff's Office to be on the lookout for a vehicle. It was located on Railroad Street, but as the officer turned the cruiser around, the subject accelerated, attempting to evade him. The vehicle pulled into a residence. It was found the driver was transporting alcohol. One of the passengers admitted to having an open container. Edward K. Keiser III, 19, of South Paris was summoned for illegal transportation of alcohol and having a passenger consuming/possessing an open alcohol container in a vehicle on a public way. Jeremy Cowin, 20, of Newry was summoned for illegal possession of alcohol by a minor.

At 8:05 a.m. police received a report that a van owned by a business had not been seen since the day before.

At 6:30 p.m. police assisted the Bethel Fire Department on Walkers Mills Road for a kitchen fire. The fire had been put out when the officer arrived. The Fire Department still responded to inspect the scene.

Sunday, Oct. 7

At 12:47 p.m. police stopped a vehicle on the Parkway for a vehicle defect. The driver showed signs of intoxication. He was given field sobriety tests and an intoxilizer test. Derek D. Custer, 24, of West Granby, Conn. was given a summons for OUI.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists all cases of adults being arrested or issued a criminal summon, but does not include all reports of other police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

Dam

THE ALDER RIVER DAM in Locke Mills.

ment Agency has recommended (not required), that the berms on either side of the dam be reinforced and the current sluice gate be replaced, Whitman said.

The cost of the berm work has been estimated at $20,000, Whitman said, but there has been no estimate on replacing the sluice gate.

If the town were to take over the dam, she said, the work would probably be financed by a fund set up by the town. The Lakes Association has offered to contribute to the fund, she said.

Woodstock, which has approximately 10 percent of its valuation in North and South ponds' shore-front, would probably also be willing to contribute, according to Town Manager Vern Maxfield.

"The selectmen would probably recommend that," Maxfield said. "They know how important it is that the dam be maintained."

Greenwood, Whitman noted, is the owner of last resort for the dam. Four agencies — The Maine departments of Conservation, Environmental Protection, Inland Fisheries and Wildlife, and MEMA — have all formally turned down offers to take over the dam.

The Lakes Association also discussed taking over the dam, Bartlett said, but was forced to reject the idea because of liability issues.

If Greenwood were to take over the dam, its liability in the event of a disaster would be limited by Maine law to $400,000 — an amount that is already covered by the town's insurance policy.

Whitman said that if no one is willing to take over ownership of the dam, DEP regulations require that it be breached.

According to Blaine Mills, the first dam on the current site was built by Samuel Locke II in 1842. It replaced an 1811 dam built slightly upstream.

Saturday's special Town Meeting will be held in the Town Hall, and will begin at 10 a.m.

Tourists

People were also camping, Pattie Parsons at Bethel Outdoor Adventures in Bethel said. "We had a record this weekend for RVs." This is the campground's fifth season.

At Sunday River Ski Resort, spokesman Susan Duplesse reported an "excellent" turnout for the resort's Fall Festival weekend.

Rosalie Holliday of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce echoed many of the businesses' reports. She said some people came from New Hampshire and the Rumford area after finding lodging places there full. Last-minute bookings she took came from Europeans and Americans from the western U.S.

The tourists were also showing up in at least some area retail shops. Kathy Cummings of Timeless Treasures on Main Street in Bethel said, "I've been busy this whole week. I was especially busy on the weekend."

At the Village Sampler up the street, manager Louise Rice was also busy. "It was a very good weekend all three days," she said.

Statewide, reports indicated a tourist comeback was also in the works in the Portland area. But reviews were mixed in other parts of the state, with downturns in tourist business and reservations reported in some locations. Some businesses, including a few in Bethel, were offering special deals or packages on lodging.

The winter

It's still a little early to say how business looks for the upcoming winter, but preliminary indications look positive, said the business people.

"I have more reservations for Christmas and presidents' weekend than I've ever had," said Thrall. "It looks very promising."

Cheney said she's hearing from people who normally fly out West for a winter vacation. And some people from Florida who were here for the foliage plan to come back in the winter instead of going west, she said.

Buell is full all four days after Christmas, and is two-thirds full for New Year's. She has some Brits booked for February vacation. "It's looking normal, or even a little better," she said.

At Sunday River, Duplesse said both reservations and season pass sales were "tracking right about as expected."

"We're remaining optimistic," she said, about the upcoming winter.

Season pass sales were "very strong" in August, Duplesse said. That was followed by a lull right after Sept. 11. "Since then, it's been picking up again," she said.

Tax

At the Java House in Bethel, everything is 7 percent. Manager Diane Howe said there's been some grumbling among customers because a cup of coffee is now $1.02 instead of $1.

At other Bethel businesses, there's been no reaction at all so far from customers. "You're the first to mention it," Jennifer Libby at the Good Food Store told the Citizen Friday. "No one has commented all week."

She speculated part of the reason is that people are focused at the moment on international news rather than state tax news.

Sarah Hebert of Finish Line Pizza, and Elaine Pitkin of the Bottle & Bag said they had not yet heard any customer reaction. Hebert noted she had to pay $15 to have her cash register reprogrammed for the new tax.

ATC wants ads off AT

Hikers on the Appalachian Trail have new scenery to look at these days besides mountains and valleys: signs, notes, business cards and fliers advertising everything from gas stations that sell ice cream to sporting camps and hostels.

The trail, which was proposed by Benton MacKaye in 1921 as a refuge from everyday life, is being overrun by reminders of the commercial world, say members of the Appalachian Trail Conference, which oversees the 2,167-mile footpath that stretches from Maine to Georgia.

The conference, based in Harpers Ferry, W. Va., plans to vote next month on a policy that would ban all advertising on the trail.

"It was really just getting to be a problem," said Brian B. King, director of public affairs for the conference.

"It's been festering for a while, but basically, in the last two years especially, we started to get advertisements, sometimes fliers, left in shelters, sometimes signs in the trail corridor, for various establishments," King said. "We even had a couple of instances of people cutting their own side trail to businesses."

But even some backers of the proposed advertising ban say the signs can be helpful in learning about restaurants, laundries and other businesses near the trail.

Dan "Wingfoot" Bruce, who runs the Center for Appalachian Trail Studies in Hot Springs, N.C., said many long-distance hikers want to know about such businesses and don't mind the signs, although he thinks they detract from the sense of wilderness.

"A percentage of our users now get excited by pizza and beer nearby," said Bruce, who has hiked the entire trail seven times.

There have been on-the-trail disputes over advertising. In Maine, for example, a local group that oversees the trail tore down a sign for a sporting camp that offered beds. The camp put it back up.

Technically, advertising is already banned on the trail because the land it passes through is a national park.

 Ida Bryant of Bangor arrived Wednesday to spend a few days with her sister and husband, Mary and Lefty Keniston.

Linda and Reggie Westleigh have enjoyed several days on vacation. They attended the Fryeburg Fair, visited with both mothers, brothers and sisters and really had a very nice time.

Bob and Ginny Keniston returned home Monday after a stay at the Fryeburg Fair. Their booth is always in the Forestry Building.

Freda Davis of West Bethel was awarded a Child Development Associate (CDA) credential in recognition of outstanding work with young children. The credential was awarded by the Council for Professional Recognition in Washington, D.C., which represents the early childhood profession. CDA is the only national effort to improve childcare by evaluation and recognizing the skills of individuals providing care. The CDA credential is having a positive effect on the quality of childcare. Its impact is evident in center-based care and home-visitor programs as well as family childcare, the most common form of care for children under five years old.

Bud and Shirley Clough are closing up their Flat Road home and will leave for their winter home in Ft. Pierce, Fla.

Barbara Kuzik returned to her home from the Norway Rehabilitation and Living Center in Norway where she was a rehab patient for many weeks.

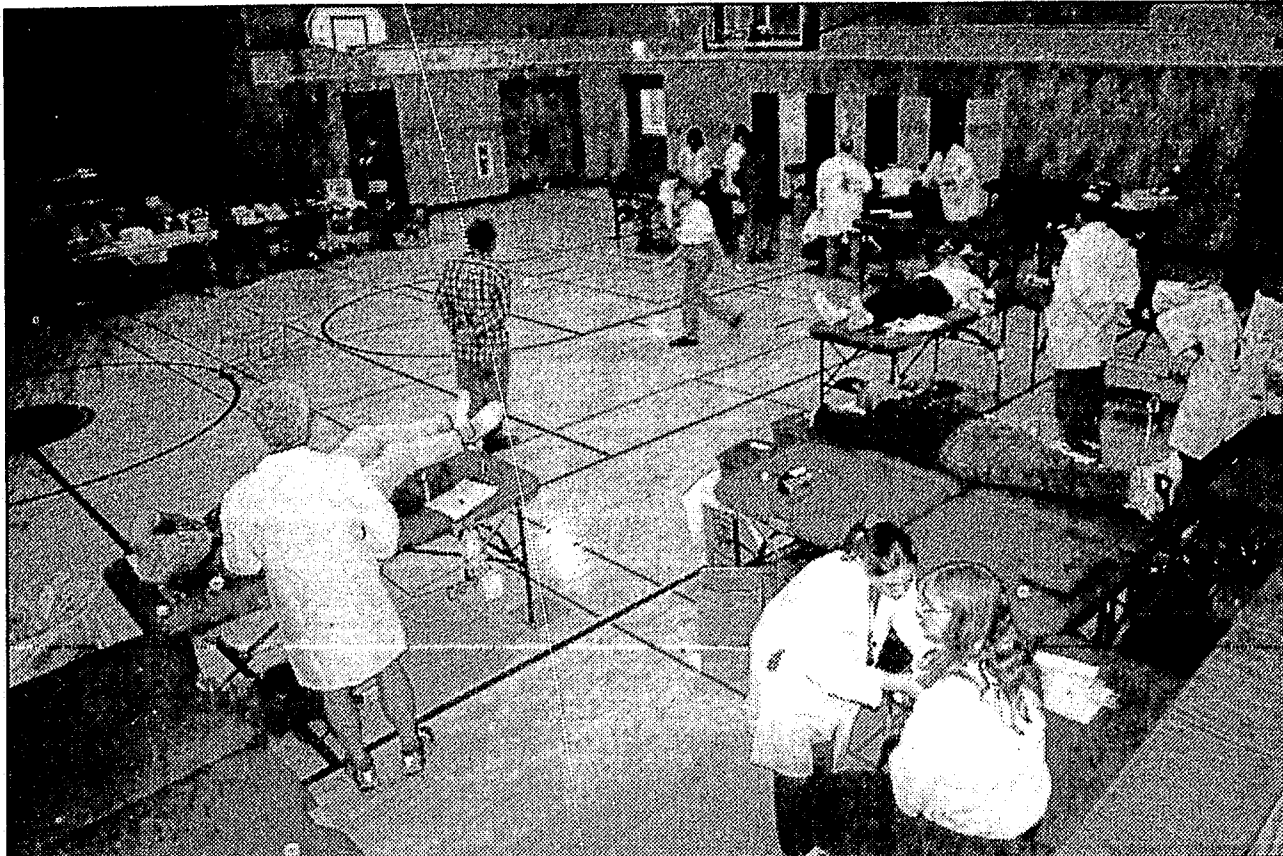

This week's news was compiled by Mrs. Mary Keniston.

Sunday River Valley

by Rockie Graham
 It is October, a time of change. The leaves turn from shades of green to red, yellow, orange and gold. In the morning they sport a white coat of frost. Soon the ground, too, will be sporting a white coat. Did I say soon? This weekend, visitors up at the Jordan and others on high ground were treated to an early snow shower. Cars traveling down the hill seemed so proud of their white-coated cars that they barely bothered to clean them off enough so they could see to drive. It was not amusing, but the drivers were gloating as if they had one up on well on someone. In any case, winter is knocking at our doors and I am trying to get ready to welcome it in. I am making great progress on the wood, but could be doing better. Yesterday, being home all day, was the first time I actually had a fire going that was more than just a smudge fire to take off the morning chill. It felt good to curl up in my rocker by the wood stove.

The other evening, just at dusk, there was a fox hanging out near the fire station. It didn't seem too vigilant about movement and didn't move when Tasha and I went by. There must be something about that area that attracts animals, even now that the dumpsters are gone. First it was the skunks that I saw, now the fox. I guess it is a relatively quiet spot when there are no firefighters hanging around.

Speaking of firefighters, it turns out that all those fire engines last week were heading to a fire at a condo at Powder Ridge. Good job guys. It is lucky it wasn't later in the season. That road is steep enough that it would make it harder for the fire engines to go up it. It is another case of building the road steeper than town specifications because it is a private road.

This seems to be the time of the rude. Traveling to Portland to visit John and take him and Lynn to the doctor, Lynn and I have been treated to all kinds of rude. There was the driver who stopped right on my tail, although I had my blinker on to park, and then honked to get me to move. There was the antique shop owner who didn't want us to enter with a guide dog (illegal, I might add), and there was the continual staring at Addie. Of course, I can't leave out being yelled out because I didn't hear the car horn coming to pick me up. Can't say, yet, what that was all about. Maybe everyone is just stressed out about the Towers and the bombing in Afghanistan. Whatever it is, people need to start being nicer to each other. We do not need to be our own worst enemies. We certainly have enough of them.

Yesterday, I got to play partial traffic cop — safely of course. I was trying to slow folks down because there was a parade of turkeys in the road. They were all crossing the road. I'm not at all sure why, because when they got there, they turned around and came back. It looked like there were thirty of them, but I am sure there were not that many. They were all sizes and seemed determined to stay together. Does that make them a flock? Drivers from the other direction all stopped to watch them.

Guess those were the "leaf peepers." Drivers coming off of Jordan were in much more of a hurry. That's why I was waving my arms to slow them down before they hit something.

That is all for this week. Stay warm and dry — more rain may be coming. Get that wood in and tighten up those houses. The cold season is too soon upon us.

Plans are underway to move a cut-granite stone from the Hanover Town House to the new Town Office. Officials hope to attach a plaque to the stone that will commemorate those responsible for making the boat ramp and town office possible.

Most years a familiar presence during this time of year at the 3J cottage at Howard Pond are Judy and Jim Ray from Austin, Texas. This year, Jim's brother is very ill in a Texas hospital and their trip to Maine has been delayed. We wish them all the best.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published here by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

Here's a pop quiz — Do you know what October 15th is? I know it's Monday, but what else is it? Give up? It is National Grouch Day. That just goes to show you that everybody really does have his or her day.

Anyway, if you know any grouches, and I'm sure you do, hug them on Monday. If you are a grouch just be yourself, this is your day, but you'll probably complain about it.

The dictionary defines a grouch as a "Habitually irritable or complaining person, a grumbler; one who mutters in discontent."

This definition could apply to me on certain days such as when my newspaper isn't delivered or my caffeine intake is a little low. But generally speaking, I could not be considered a grouch.

A real grouch is a person that is never pleased by anything all the time. They are often referred to by more descriptive nouns, but I can't use them in a family publication. I'm sure you know what they are and I'm pretty sure you know a few people they apply to.

I had a school teacher once who was one of the all time great grouches. If my homework was done on time (rarely), he would pick it apart. If he found nothing to criticize (rarely), he wanted to know whose work I copied. His biggest pleasure in life was to give a pop quiz the day before a vacation on material he knew no one would know. He would then load us up with homework for vacation and tell us on our way out the door the quiz, the results of which we would not know until after vacation, would constitute 50% of our grade. I was always sure that every morning when he would brush his teeth he would also sharpen his tongue. Happy National Grouch Day Mr. R wherever you are.

I once worked for a man who made Mr. R look like Mary Poppins. Most of the conversations that took place between us were me asking a question, a very important question, and him grumbling an answer that no one could understand. If I was sick he would complain that I was infecting everyone, especially him with my germs and he would tell me to go home, then he would complain because I wasn't there. Happy National Grouch Day Mr. B wherever you are.

Everyone has had an experience with someone like Mr. R or Mr. B. There are grouches all around us. They are the ones when you say good morning to them they want to know what's good about it. If you should be foolish enough to point out to them that it is a beautiful day they will tell you they have far better things to do than think about the weather.

If you have to deal with a grouch on Monday and they try to tell you the way they see it, perhaps you could just tell them the way I see it and that's to wish all the grouches of the world a very Happy National Grouch Day.

If you give a grouch a present, they will complain that it is the wrong size or color or that they all ready have it and just what do you expect in return.

Now the grouches of America have their own special day. I'm not exactly sure what the proper etiquette is in observing National Grouch Day. Maybe one should send them a dead plant or a bouquet of black balloons. Maybe you should just agree with everything they say on this day. Or maybe you just keep out of their way and let them brood in peace.

It's not easy to honor a grouch because they are never happy about anything. They're all like porcupines only with ingrown quills. They're the most temperamental people in the world — 90% temper and 10% mental. They would find fault even in Paradise.

So I really don't know how to observe National Grouch Day. I guess I'll just try to be very nice to them when I encounter them. Fortunately, I don't have to deal with a lot of grouches, but sometimes when one or two that I know want my opinion on something they are very quick to give it to me. Usually when this happens I can be a bit flippant, but if it is on Monday I will try to be very nice to them.

If you have to deal with a grouch on Monday and they try to tell you the way they see it, perhaps you could just tell them the way I see it and that's to wish all the grouches of the world a very Happy National Grouch Day.

LOCAL BUSINESS PROFILE

SILVER CREATIONS
The Grand Re-opening of Silver Creations, located at 42 Main Street in Bryant Pond, took place recently. Owner Sharon Felt Silver operated the shop for four years on the corner of Upper Main Street. The business has grown since then, requiring the move to larger quarters. The new location features four display rooms, a workshop and a kitchen. Silver Creations offers fresh, silk and dried flowers, Christmas wreaths and centerpieces, cards and gifts, jewelry, wedding rentals and consultations, and funeral and memorial tributes. A lawn care and landscaping service is also offered. Hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 1 to 6 p.m. (665-3131 or 665-2281). (Photo by Bertha DeHaas)

Several people from Upton attended the "October Fest" at Attitash. It wasn't a total washout because they had a great time. The Nelsons, Wixoms, Kenneys and Stanczyes went as a group for Beer, Bratwurst and Oompah music.

C.J. Stratton, Roger Lavallee and Mike Vien are back working on C.J.'s camp. The rush is on now that the weather has changed.

A big "Thank You" to Merna and Bob Monroe for their contribution of books to the library. They are informational books on a wide range of subjects. Sue Angevine and Vi Bernier again invite you to use the library. It is opened on request. Call Vi, Sue or me and we will open the door for you. We need children's books if you have any to spare.

Caitlyn and Jessica Casey have chosen a name for their new golden retriever. Her name is "Maggie" (short for Magalloway). My first name is Agnes and my sister's name is Margaret. All our lives we fought being called Maggie and Aggie. Thanks, folks, we now have two dogs in town named Maggie and Aggie. The only thing I can say is "woof."

Since bird season is open now, I think a game bird should be the "Bird of the Week." I have always been fascinated by the woodcock, which inhabits our forests. This is a quail-size bird. It is very stocky and full chested with a long, most unusual bill. I wouldn't call it a pretty bird but I would call it a delicious bird. It has large protruding eyes and rounded wings. Its habitat is in moist woodland thickets near an open field. It has a strange voice that sounds something like a broken doorbell. Its call repeats itself several times every few seconds. This elusive bird is seldom seen, because its protective coloring renders it almost invisible on the forest floor. When flushed from underfoot, it zigzags off through the brush often flying toward the sun. It requires a skilled hunter to bag one of these birds. Those fortunate enough to live near the breeding ground may witness a courtship flight early in the spring. The male spirals up to a considerable height, then plummets to earth calling as he descends. They subsist on a diet of earthworms that they extract with their long bills. The tip of the upper mandible is flexible enabling them to grasp a worm while probing in the mud. Occasionally, they eat vegetable matter and insect larvae. (Another delicious meal.) Not everyone enjoys the taste of woodcock. Many woodcock are sacrificed to provide enough for an average meal. With proper preparation and presoaking in baking soda and marinating them in a favorite solution before cooking will enhance the flavor. The "Bird of the Week" is the American Woodcock. Bon Appetite.

What a week we had last week. I didn't get any column in because Friday I was in Norway all day. I had to be at the hospital early for a gallbladder ultrasound. I'd been having a pain in my back, so the doctor had a test done on my stomach. I figured the gallbladder was fine, and it was, but no one listens to me. All I wanted to do was rule out lung problems, so I did get a chest x-ray, which was all right, also. So I'm back to my first assessment, which was a muscle strain.

After the test, Andy and I went out to breakfast and then shopping. I needed an outfit for my 50th class reunion at Gould. I had it all figured what I was going to wear, but my husband said no way because I looked 80 in that outfit. Thanks a bunch, fella. Anyway, it cost him money to get me outfitted, but he was happy. I didn't look 80. Most of them don't look 80 either. Gone are the days when one was supposed to look like a matron at 30, thank God.

We got back just in time to get dressed for the Friday evening banquet. The 50th reunion classmates got to receive diplomas and eat by themselves upstairs. We also received key chains and baseball hats. (Continued next week.)

I think television news and talk shows are bound and determined to terrify everyone with all the "what if" scenarios. Hey, the world is a dangerous place to live. There's always been diseases, earthquakes, floods, tornadoes, hurricanes, meteorites, volcanoes, pirates, and outlaws to name a few. Proverb three says, "Do not be afraid of the sudden terror or those who commit evil acts." There is no guarantee of peaceful living, only peace in the midst of the storm. Is it okay to be afraid? You bet it is, but at least, wait until the enemy is in front of your nose if you can. You'll have more strength that way.

Living as I do, in the country, surrounded by woods, fields and streams, I look out my windows seeing things of interest. Just a few minutes ago my friend, Florence, said, "Look out the window quickly." I did, and coming toward my front steps to my porch was a moose. We watched to see if he would try to make the steps. He didn't try. He turned and went up the driveway into the woods. (He may have been a she.) But a moose it was. Since then, I have seen a raccoon. I haven't seen a bear yet, and don't care to see one.

Now there are echoing winds, beneath the pines and maples. Across the valley I can see the glory of the woodland and the spreading over the hills. The calendar says fall. Is it?

Columbus Day weekend was a rude awakening that summer would not last forever. Saturday was a beautiful, sunny day, but Sunday it all went downhill with a drastic change in the weather pattern. Rain, wind, snow, sleet and general dismal weather was upon us. Monday morning there were two and a half inches of snow on Back Street, according to Ray Bernier. The fall colors were still on the trees, mixed with the white snow. It was a very pretty sight, but Mother Nature was warning us that Old Man Winter was on the way. A birthday party was held on Tuesday at the Ladies Aid for Simmonne Lavallee. Simmonne has recovered from her nasty bout with sciatica and is again the spry little lady we all know.

The holiday weekend brought many people to their camps to enjoy the grand fall colors. Camps no longer close up after Labor Day, but are utilized through late fall and winter.

Lucille and Earl Largesse spent last week at the Fryeburg Fair. Having their travel trailer on the premises made for a very enjoyable week. The Harris and Sullivan families from New York and Massachusetts traveled a long way to enjoy the fair. The Kenneys and Wixoms went to the races at the fair and plan to buy a "BMW" with their winnings. The "Cards and Pool" group enjoyed a fantastic dinner at the Balsams on Oct. 4. Weight Watchers should have some new members before the week is out.

Matthew Koskela, Woodstock, was named to the dean's list at Maine Maritime Academy in Castine for outstanding academic achievement during the second semester. Kenneth is a member of the Class of 2002 and is majoring in marine engineering technology. He graduated from Telstar Regional High School. We wish him the best of luck in the future.

Our daughter, Kellie Record, brought her grandson, Zachary, up for a visit Sunday. We all had lunch together. We're always glad to have them come up whenever possible.

Jessie Hart stopped by for a short visit Saturday. I had a nice visit with my sister-in-law, Joan Poland, one afternoon.

CHANGING SEASONS

Top: First snow of the season fell Monday in Grafton Notch. Left: Oblivious of the season - hunting season, at least - a moose enjoys the fall sunshine along Route 26 in Bethel.

Joan brought up some pictures of her great-grandsons, Brandon and Jarod, who now reside in Arizona. They are real cute little boys and the family misses them very much.

Mark Tripp has been named to the dean's list for the fall and spring semester at U of M at Augusta. He is majoring in jazz and contemporary music. He is a graduate of Telstar Regional High School in Bethel and is the son of David and Peggy Tripp of Greenwood.

Leaves have turned quite a bit here but don't seem as pretty as usual.

Duane Ryerson and Wesley Cox stopped by and paid Richard a dooryard visit Sunday.

We have a crow that comes every day (usually several times) looking for bread or whatever we throw out for him to eat. He's not very afraid anymore and will stay where he is when we come out.

Larry Billings, curator of Woodstock Historical Society, reports that the society values your support and the interest so many people in the area have expressed. Paul Billings went to some fairs to represent the Republican Party. Curator Billings has given two new books on Maine to the museum.

The leaves are nice during foliage every year, but we'll miss some of the birds that are flocking to go south.

West Paris

by Miriam Inman
The Parisians played at Fryeburg Fair on Tuesday to a large crowd on a gorgeous day.

It was nice to see Bob and Mary Eichel, Erland and Margie Wentzell and Rodney Wentzell.

How lucky we have been to have such lovely warm weather for the fair. Guess we better enjoy it.

The West Paris Historical Society will meet on Monday, Oct. 15, for a potluck supper.

The Universalist Church board of management meeting will be on Wednesday, Oct. 17, at the home of Nancy Willard.

We are pleased that Connie Bacon is back at home.

Last Saturday, daughter Vicky Sanborn and I went on the Katahdin cruise on Moosehead Lake. We stayed Friday and Saturday night in Greenville. The day was nice and the scenery was great.

West Paris

Fryeburg Fair took place last week, so we know snow flurries, frost and freezes are on the way. Are you really for winter? 'Tis time to do our fall house-cleaning; put on storm windows; bank the house with hay, boughs or leaves; make sure all pipes are well insulated; take in the dahlias and glad bulbs; mulch the berry and bulb beds; get all the wood into the shed for winter; dig the rest of the potatoes, carrots, turnips and onions; pick the last of the apples; and thank God for all of these things. Lots of folks in other countries do not have homes and gardens. We are most fortunate and should not take these things for granted.

West Paris Grange put two displays into the Fryeburg Fair this year and came away with one second prize and one third prize. Congratulations for all your endeavors.

Coming home from Greenwood the other night we were fortunate to see a cow moose and her calf. Got a photo of mama but not her baby.

As the days grow shorter it will be darker both when our children and grandchildren leave home for school and when they return after school. Watch closely, as these youngsters come flying almost out of nowhere on foot, on bikes, on scooters, or inline skates. If you aren't always alert, there could be a real disaster. Remember the old saying, "Always Alert, Never Hurt."

Franklin Grange 124 met at their hall on Main Street, Bryant Pond, on Monday night, with George Gibbs speaking on agriculture, especially apple growing. Richard Cole and son played music for us and sang.

The church breakfast scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 7, at the West Paris Baptist Church has been postponed until later, as the furnace is out of commission and it is getting colder.

Singspiration will be Sunday, Oct. 7, at 7 p.m. at the North Paris Federated Church. Come on out and enjoy this beautiful music.

See you all next week.

ESTHER CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

The leaves were beautiful and blowing in the wind. The weather was typical, changing from rain to sun every ten minutes or so. This was the perfect weather for many family members and friends of Esther Wilson to join in the celebration of her 53rd birthday party this past Saturday. The Red Top may have been closed for business, but the place was booming nonetheless. People were coming and going to wish her a wonderful day. Among those attending were brothers and sisters, nieces and nephews and many friends. Crockett, who is making a great recovery back from the hospital, had a great time visiting and spending time with people she hadn't seen in a long time. She is definitely feeling more like her old self, because above the crowd you could hear that familiar laugh and those promises that she will be back in charge in no time at all. In fact, when she was asked when she thought she might be back to being boss, she replied, "As soon as I can, but right now I think maybe they would throw my butt out if I tried."

Gold: The Rise and Fall of the Sweet Corn Industry in Northern New England," will provide a number of insights into this long vanished industry that employed thousands of northern New-Englanders from the late 19th through the early decades of the 20th centuries. Professor Frederic has completed a book on the topic that should make its appearance in the near future. As usual, the lecture is free and open to all interested persons.

Among visitors to the Regional History Center this past week were a group of seniors on a cultural trip sponsored by UMF, Delta Kappa Gamma, and the Mollycoddett Chapter of the DAR.

On Oct. 13, the society will host the fall meeting of the Maine Old Cemetery Association (M.O.C.A.) with tours and special programs.

From the

Bethel Area

Chamber of Commerce

Columbus Day weekend saw perfect leaves and many shoppers in the Bethel area. Restaurants and lodging establishments were quite busy. The fourth annual Bethel Antique Show, last Saturday, at Telstar Regional High School, was a great success. Many thanks to our dedicated volunteers — Doug Zinchuk, Jette Black, Dave Freitag, Kimberly and Sandra Poland, Ginny Walker, Susan Herlihy, and Emily Beers.

Welcome to two new members — first, Computer Solutions of Maine, Jim Bennett, owner. He'll meet all your computer needs: new systems, upgrades, repairs; hardware, software, in-home networking, DSL setup. Call him at 824-3131. Second, Linda Clifford — Scottish and Irish Merchant. Linda has set up a new shop in the brick building at the corner of Main and Broad streets, and she features tartans, kilts, Highland attire and accessories, Ferguson's Irish linen, Heritage crystal, Nicholas Mosse pottery, fine gifts, and a bridal registry. Stop in and see her lovely shop or call her at 824-6560. She is planning an open house on Thursday, Nov. 8 from 4 to 6 p.m.

RSVPs are due to the chamber office by Sunday, Oct. 21, for the annual meeting and dinner. Expanded to include a full dinner instead of just hors d'oeuvres, the meeting will be at the Sudbury Inn on Wednesday, Oct. 24 and is $20.

From the

Bethel Rotary Club

This week in Rotary, we heard from Paul Casey, director, Umbagog National Wildlife Refuge (Lake Umbagog NWR). We learned from Paul and U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service (Service) information that the habitat and abundant wildlife around Lake Umbagog have long been recognized as special and important. Umbagog means "clear water." The lake itself is more than 10 miles in length and covers more than 8,500 acres, making it one of the largest lakes along the Maine/New Hampshire border. Further, its average depth is only 15 feet. The Lake Umbagog area wetland is a priority for protection; this designation recognizes the floating bog and wetlands as a significant natural area. After years of work and the creation of many partnerships, the Service in 1992 purchased the first refuge land parcel, officially establishing the Lake Umbagog National Wildlife Refuge. At a refuge, the wildlife comes first. Lake Umbagog Refuge, one of 500 national refuges, supports a variety of mammals, migratory non-game birds, abundant fish populations, protected species, and wetland habitat. It hosts one of the largest nesting concentration of common loons; also, two bald eagles are currently nesting there, too. Lake Umbagog NWR has recently embarked on a Comprehensive Conservation Plan. Those interested can find out more information either from Lake Umbagog NWR in Errol, N.H., or from the Service in Hadley, Mass.

The Bethel Club joins Rotarians around the world to commemorate October as Vocational Service Month. Vocation is one of the avenues of service for Rotary. As history has it, Rotary, the world's first service club, was born from founder Paul Harris' wish to recapture in a professional club the same friendly spirit he had felt in the small towns of his youth. The name "Rotary" derived from the early practice of rotating meetings among members' offices. Today, one of the objectives of Rotary is to encourage and foster high ethical standards in business and professions, to recognize the worthiness of all useful occupations, and to dignify each Rotarian's occupation as an opportunity to serve society.

Calendar items: October, Vocational Service Month; October/November, look for the Pointsettia Sale; Nov. 17, Bridgton's Rotary Club Anniversary Celebration; Nov. 25, Country Pancake Breakfast; Dec. 11, Senior Dinner.

Inside Rotary — Our sympathies to Jim Mann; Thanks, Cynthia; Welcome Home Read; Congratulations Janet Black on your Floral People's Choice Award; So, you really loved the ballet, Bob?

Happy October Birthdays: Kevin Finley, Jim Reuter, Kathy Thrall, Steve Wight.

Upcoming programs include Club Assembly; Bring a Friend to Rotary; Sister Michael Marie Laux, St. Theresa's School for Girls, Genkano, Kenya.

Rotary International is an international service organization of 1.2 million business and professional men and women who, as volunteers, address needs of their home and international communities.

The Bethel Rotary Club meets Tuesdays at 7:30 a.m. at The Bethel Inn and Country Club through Oct. 16. The Oct. 23 meeting will be hosted by the Bethel Historical Society at the Moses Mason House.

A MAIL "STAGE" IS STOPPED AT BETHEL HILL at "Honest Corner" about 1910 in front of the Hastings Block (corner of Main and Church streets) now the site of Wild River Realty. This photograph is among thousands that can be found at the Bethel Historical Society, which also possesses an outstanding collection of manuscripts, books, documents, and artifacts relating to western Maine and northern New Hampshire. The society is currently raising funds to establish its Regional History Center and to renovate the 1821 O'Neil Robinson House on Broad Street, which now houses exhibit galleries, offices, and the museum shop. Completion of this project will provide for improved storage space and greater access to collections as well as rooms devoted to educational activities, genealogical and historical research, and traditional crafts. Once the center is fully operational it will offer an expanded series of lectures, special events, conferences, courses, seminars, and publications. To learn more about this project, call the society at (207) 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910, write to us at the e-mail address bethelhistory@ctel.net or visit the Web site at www.ctel.net/~bethelhistory

In Loving Memory

of Richard G. Hutchins
Murdered October 9, 1992
I am home in heaven dear ones,
Oh! so happy and so bright.
There is perfect joy and beauty in this everlasting light.

All the pain and grief are over.
Every restless yearning past.
I am now at peace forever.
Safely home in heaven at last.
Dear ones, do not grieve so sorely,
for I love you dearly still.
Try to look beyond the earth's shadows.
Play to trust our Father's will.
When your work is all completed, he will gently call you home,
Oh! the rapture of that meeting!
Oh! the joy to see you come.

Loved and sadly missed,
